Meghan E. Anderson Joins Greenbaum, Rowe, Smith & Davis as Tax and Estate Planning, Counseling, Administration & Litigation Associate

Announcement

10.09.25

Greenbaum, Rowe, Smith & Davis LLP is pleased to announce that Meghan E. Anderson recently joined the firm as an associate in Greenbaum's Tax and Estate Planning, Counseling, Administration & Litigation practices.

Meghan advises individuals, families and business clients, including high-net-worth individuals and the owners of closely held businesses, on all aspects of estate planning and administration. Her work encompasses the drafting of wills, trusts, advance directives, powers of attorney and other estate planning documents. She provides guidance related to federal and state income, gift, estate, generation-skipping transfer and other tax matters and their implications within the estate planning and administration contexts. She also manages the administration of trusts and estates with individual fiduciaries, including the preparation of New Jersey inheritance tax returns and federal estate tax returns.

Prior to entering private practice, Meghan worked in the mergers and acquisitions tax group of a "big four" accounting firm, where she advised private equity and corporate clients on the tax consequences of domestic and international M&A transactions and corporate restructurings.

Meghan received her J.D. at Pennsylvania State University, Dickinson School of Law, an LL.M in Taxation with distinction from Georgetown University Law Center, and a B.A. from Drew University. She earned an Advanced Professional Certificate in Taxation in Estate Planning from New York University School of Law. She is admitted to practice in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. She is a member of the New Jersey State Bar Association's Real Property, Trust & Estate Law Section and the Middlesex County Bar Association.
